Western Big Three Leaders Gather to Talk With W. Berlin

PARIS (AP) — Foreign ministers of the Western Big Three plus West Germany gathered today to plan what to do about Soviet efforts to get them out of West Berlin.

Advance indications were that they would take a firm stand for maintaining Western protection of the anti-Communist city 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

Blasts Moscow Regime Secretary of State Dulles flew in from Washington at 9:17 a.m. on the presidential plane Columbine III.

Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, Maurice Couve de Murville of France and Heinrich von Brentano of West Germany will meet with Dulles Sunday to begin studying Khrushchev's Thanksgiving Day note.

Any decisions they reach will be reported to foreign ministers of the other 11 Atlantic Alliance nations, who are expected to join in a united front against the Soviet move.

Berlin was not on the official agenda for the NATO meeting but was certain to assume a large place in the discussions.

Variety of Opinion There was a wide variety of opinion, however, on just how this firmness should be expressed in the formal answer to Khrushchev.

Khrushchev gave the West six months to get out of West Berlin. He said if they had not left in that time, he would turn over to Communist East Germany control of Western access to the city.

In what has come to be regarded as an annual Soviet threatening note just before the NATO meeting, Russia warned Thursday that any Western attempt to cross East Germany without the satellite regime's permission would be considered aggression against the entire Soviet bloc.

Dulles Looking Well Dulles left a hospital bed after a week long bout with inflammation of the lower intestine.

Refuses Renewal Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan Friday refused to renew a temporary injunction obtained by American, and at the same time denied the company a permanent stay.

Bryan ruled that the Air Line Pilots Assn. had been bargaining in good faith during involved negotiations that began more than a year ago.

At the same time, the judge refused a request by the union to dismiss a $340,000-damage suit against it. American contends it has suffered financially because of the pilots' strike threats.

Both sides were optimistic about the situation. In San Francisco Friday, an American Airline spokesman said,

Doctor of Late Pope Is Barred From Practice

Physician Has Opportunity To Appeal Ouster Caused By His Sale of Pictures And News of Papal Death

ROME (AP) — The personal physician of the late Pope Pius XII has been barred from practicing medicine in Italy for selling newspaper articles and photographs on the Pope's death.

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, 67, gave no immediate indication whether he would appeal his expulsion Friday night by the Council of the Rome Medical Assn., which automatically prohibited him from practicing. He has 30 days in which to appeal to a mixed board of doctors and magistrates.

If he appeals he will be allowed to practice pending the outcome.

Closed Door Session The medical association's 14-member council questioned the doctor behind locked doors for 20 minutes before it issued its verdict.

Galeazzi-Lisi brushed by newsmen without a word when he left the association's headquarters.

He previously had maintained his conscience was at rest and he had not betrayed any professional medical secrets concerning Pope Pius, who died Oct. 9. Once a patient dies, a physician is free to discuss his case, Galeazzi-Lisi contended.

The council accused Galeazzi-Lisi of seeking "to achieve profit." It added he "gravely compromised his own reputation and the dignity of the medical class."

The actions... constitute an infraction of medical ethics because a professional physician cannot divulge facts which he learned through his professional activity," the council said.

Galeazzi-Lisi's articles, based on a diary he kept while attending the stricken pontiff, appeared about 10 days after the Pope died. Some Italian newspapers bought the articles but later decided not to print them.

With the articles stirring an uproar, Galeazzi-Lisi resigned as director of the Vatican health services. The medical association then started an investigation.

Seaton Denies He Is Quitting

HONOLULU (AP) — Fred A. Seaton returns to Washington today firmly denying a report that he intends to resign as secretary of the interior.

Seaton said the report probably arose from a misunderstanding. He said he told Charles Parmiter, political reporter for the Honolulu Star-Bulletin that he has no intention of pursuing a political career after 1960 and, "I have told reporters that in each of the 48 states."

Parmiter said Seaton had volunteered that he intended to resign soon.

Seaton was in Honolulu to address Friday's closing conference of Republican leaders of 12 Western states and Hawaii.

Federal Judge Lifts Strike Ban Against Airline Pilots

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has lifted a temporary strike ban against pilots for American Airlines, but the union says it has no immediate plans for a walk-out.

Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan Friday refused to renew a temporary injunction obtained by American, and at the same time denied the company a permanent stay.

Bryan ruled that the Air Line Pilots Assn. had been bargaining in good faith during involved negotiations that began more than a year ago.

At the same time, the judge refused a request by the union to dismiss a $340,000-damage suit against it. American contends it has suffered financially because of the pilots' strike threats.

Both sides were optimistic about the situation. In San Francisco Friday, an American Airline spokesman said,

"we have been negotiating with the pilots since Tuesday. We do not expect a strike."

May Give Notice In Chicago, where negotiations are going on, a union spokesman said it is unlikely the pilots will walk out without first giving the traveling public some notice to minimize inconvenience.

Christmas Eve Murderers Win Their Freedom

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Two 63-year-old men convicted of the sensational Christmas Eve murder of an archbishop nearly 25 years ago were free men today, by order of Gov. Harriman.

The governor Friday commuted to time served the prison sentences of Mateos Lylegian and Nishan Sarkissian of New York. He said he did so on the recommendation of the State Parole Board.

They were convicted of stabbing Archbishop Leon Tourian of the Greek Catholic Church before more than 200 worshippers in the Holy Cross Armenian Apostolic Church in New York City Dec. 24, 1933.

Political Strike Link The assassination, linked with internal political strife in Armenia, caused a sensation here and abroad. Mob fights erupted in Boston and Chicago. Protest meetings were held. The fierce arguments involved supporters and opponents of the Armenian government.

But the basic reason for the assassination still is cloaked in mystery. Nine men eventually were arrested. At one court hearing, a mob attacked the defendants. Police saved them.

Lylegian and Sarkissian denied any part in the attack on the archbishop. But both were convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to die. Herbert H. Lehman, governor at the time, commuted their

Fresh Snow Covers Oswego; More Cold, Snow for State

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP) — Three inches of new snow early today threw a fresh spread on the thick white blanket plaguing this pretty lakeside city.

But a bright sun broke through this morning and gave an added boost to the thousands of shovelers digging out from 80 inches of snow this month, 69, since Sunday.

The city braced for a possibility of more snow late today and Sunday. The U.S. Weather Bureau said, however, a lack of high winds on Lake Ontario might keep the snow away.

Cold Remains in State Meanwhile, temperatures overnight hovered near zero again today across New York State and dropped to as low as -12 in mountain reaches of the Adirondacks.

Similar cold weather was expected tonight. Snow flurries were forecast for the rest of the state, except possibly heavy squalls in the snow-belt section of Western New York, off Lake Erie.

The mercury registered -12 at Duane, near Malone, and from 6 to 10 below in the Owls Head and Saranac Lake areas of the Adirondacks. It was -2 at Massena, on the Canadian border, zero at Watertown, 1 above at Elmira and 2 above at Plattsburgh.

The Weather Bureau reported these other above-zero lows: Above-Zero Lows Five at Syracuse, 6 at Glens Falls, Oneonta and Albany; 7 at Binghamton, Utica and Rome; 8

Chance to Recover Monkey Alive Dim; Fate Still Unknown

Squirrel Monkey, Nicknamed 'Little Old Reliable', Sent Into Space Early Today; Main Objective of Experiment Is to Retrieve Monkey Alive, Success Will Mean First Time Live Being Ever Recovered

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Army fired a monkey into space early today in the nose cone of a missile. But the chances of recovering the tiny rider alive appeared slim.

Three hours after the spectacular launching of the Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile at 4 a.m. (EST) there still was no announcement of the fate of the squirrel monkey, nicknamed variously Gordo and "Little Old Reliable".

Haven't Given Up "We haven't given up, we're still trying, but the chances don't look good," one source close to the project said, referring to attempts to recover the monkey alive from the South Atlantic.

This was the first attempt by American scientists, as far as is known, to fire a primate on a brief journey into space and bring him back alive.

If successful, it would be the first time that anything alive was recovered from space.

Scientists already know from the flight of about 15 minutes that the monkey fared well as he soared some 600 miles into space.

Hit Target Area The missile warhead hit the predetermined target area more than 1,500 miles from the launching site. However, indications were that the Navy recovery team that awaited the nose cone's re-entry into the earth's atmosphere apparently ran into trouble.

If all had gone well the submerged cone and its precious cargo should have been retrieved from the Atlantic in the space of about two hours at the most.

At 7 a.m. (EST) there still was no official announcement on the status of the recovery operation.

In Washington, Capt. Norman Lee Barr of the Navy Medical Corps said information radioed back from the monkey's flight in

Five in Family Are Murdered; Suspect Youth

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — A homeless youth the family had befriended was sought today for slaying four children to death and shooting their mother.

The bodies of Mrs. Lois Pendergast, 37, and her children were discovered in their home Friday night. The children's throats had been cut and their abdomens slashed.

A widespread search began throughout Southern California for a towering teen-ager, who had been living with the Pendergasts for the past few weeks doing odd jobs around the house. Thick fog hampered the searches.

Former New Yorker Thomas J. Pendergast discovered the bodies of his wife and children, but not before the youth, identified as Charles Harrison of Rochester, N.Y., had disappeared.

Pendergast, an aircraft worker, said Harrison was waiting for him outside the house when he arrived home from work Friday night. The 6-foot 4-inch youth aimed a .22 rifle at him and said:

"I have a cop tied up in the house. You're going to drive me out of here."

Pendergast drove at gunpoint toward San Diego, 10 miles away. On the outskirts of the city the youth ordered him into a service station rest room so they could exchange clothing. The man grabbed the gun away from Harrison, but the youth slipped outside and disappeared down an alley.

Finds Family Slain Pendergast then drove home and found his family slain. The shocked father told police he had picked up Harrison hitchhiking last Nov. 2.

"He told me he had run away from home in Rochester because

PACIFIST MINISTER WHEELED INTO COURT — The Rev. Maurice McCrackin, looking wan after a 15-day fast in jail, smiles as U.S. deputy marshals wheel him into Cincinnati court to face trial for failure to respond to an internal revenue service summons. Senator Tells Troy Group of Russian Visit ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — During his marathon, eight-hour conversation with Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Nikita Khrushchev took only one drink, and it was brandy not the usual vodka.

That was the report Humphrey gave newsmen Friday of his recent Kremlin visit with the Soviet premier, who is regarded as somewhat of a trencherman with vodka.

Humphrey addressed a World Affairs Council meeting in nearby Troy and was a guest of Gov. Harriman overnight in the Executive Mansion.

The Minnesota Democrat said Khrushchev's drink was "one small Armenian brandy" served after dinner.

Time of Reform Humphrey said with a smile he had apparently arrived "at a time of reform... he's been having some kidney trouble."

The meeting with reporters was held in Harriman's office at the state Capitol. The Democratic governor, sitting beside Humphrey, said he regarded the senator as a leading candidate for the party's presidential nomination in 1960.

Humphrey would not say whether he was interested in the nomination.

In his talks in Albany and Troy, Humphrey dealt with Communist matters.

Emotional Approach He said it was time for the United States to rid itself of its "emotional approach" toward Com-

Attorneys for Pacifist Minister Battle On, Despite Denunciation by U.S. Judge

CINCINNATI (AP) — Stung by a scathing denunciation of their client by a federal judge, attorneys for a pacifist minister were ready today to fight on—whether their disciple of civil disobedience likes it or not.

The attack on the Rev. Maurice F. McCrackin by Judge John H. Druffel came between the time a jury convicted the minister and the judge sentenced him to six months in a federal prison and fined him $250. Rev. McCrackin was convicted Friday of refusing to answer an Internal Revenue Service summons to discuss his refusal to pay federal income taxes.

Judge Druffel told the 53-year-old bachelor minister — still gaunt from a 15-day jail-cell fast: "Your pious attitude is more or less of a false face."

Claims Red Sympathies Then, after accusing Rev. McCrackin of being a "pacifist agitator" and of associating "with those of overwhelming Soviet sympathies," the judge added: "I don't know of any more pious traitor than that."

Although he was a court-appointed attorney who has served without pay, co-counsel Theodore M. Berry leaped to his feet in protest.

"As an officer of this court," he shouted, "the court is guilty of a grievous error. There is not one iota of proof that Rev. McCrackin is a Communist."

Berry and his co-counsel, Prof. Fred G. Dewey of the University of Cincinnati, were asked immediately after court adjourned if they planned to appeal. Berry shot back heatedly: "You're damned right. What else can we do?"

One-Sided Presentations Internal Revenue Service officials presented all the testimony for the prosecution; only a handful of character witnesses appeared for the defense.

The entire trial was an off-beat affair. Through it all, Rev. McCrackin remained serene — and silent. He refused to stand in court, plead to the indictment, defend himself or help his attorneys. While he awaited the verdict, he read calmly from a book by Albert Schweitzer.

Only after the jury's verdict — reached in only 19 minutes of deliberation — did he break his silence. Even then, he said only: "There is one thing I'd like to say. It is my earnest prayer that the government will stop its war preparations and honor the consciences of those who would stop these evils."

Judge Makes Offer Before sentencing, Judge Druffel disclosed that only a week ago, at a pretrial hearing, he offered probation to the minister in return for a plea of nolo contendere (no contest).

But the minister of Cincinnati's St. Barnabas Presbyterian and Episcopal church refused to have anything to do with the legal fight.

Faced with complete lack of cooperation by their client, Berry and Dewey based almost their entire case on a contention the summons which Rev. McCrackin refused to honor was invalid, that it was issued by a person without authority to issue it.

While Rev. McCrackin has failed even to file income tax returns for 1955 and 1956 on grounds much of the money would have been used for armaments, the trial did not strike at the heart of this issue. It was concerned solely with his refusal to answer the summons to discuss his tax returns.
